CELEBRATION ON BRITISH EMPIRE DAY HAS TRAGIC ENDING WHEN HUGE STAGE GIVEN WAY.

SCORES ARE INJURED

Each Below Municipal Pier Is Withing Mass of Humanity—Crowds Thrown Into a Panic—Mayor Hatch Thought Dead.

Long Beach, Cal., May 24.—A staging overloaded with spectators gathered together to do honors to the late Queen Victoria on "British Empire day" collapsed on the municipal pier here this afternoon, furnishing a tragic ending to what was planned as a great gala event.

The people on the structure fell through the floor of the big building onto the beach, a writhing mass of humanity.

The tragedy caused a panic and the great crowd was uncontrollable. An appeal was sent at once to the Los Angeles police department and several auto carts of special police were hurried to the scene.

A report received at the police headquarters at 1:15 this afternoon placed the number of dead at thirty-five. Scores are injured, many fatally, said the same report.

Mayor Hatch of Long Beach, who was to have been one of the principal speakers on the stage when it collapsed and is thought to be dead or seriously hurt.

First Report. Long Beach, Cal., May 24.—Scores of persons were injured and a number probably killed just before noon today when a platform in front of the auditorium on the municipal pier while a parade in celebration of the "British empire day" was entering the building.

Mayor Hatch was with Grand Marshal Russell in the van of the parade and it is believed he was among the many who were dropped through the collapsed platform to the sand beneath the pier. There was a panic among the thousands of people on the pier.

MINNESOTA OARSMEN IN ACCIDENT; LOSE

Wisconsin Crew Easily Wins Annual Race Today When Two of Her Rival Crew Are Thrown Into Water.

Madison, May 24.—An accident to two of the oarsmen in the shell of the Minnesota boat club caused several minutes delay this afternoon and the University of Wisconsin crew won the annual boat race between the two crews.

Two of the Minnesota crew were thrown in the water and the others did not finish the race. No time was taken. The University of Wisconsin Freshmen crew were easy winners over the men in the St. John's military shell winning by two boat lengths over a mile and a quarter course in six minutes, twenty-four seconds. The men pulling five and six in the soldiers boat lagged and spoiled a good start they made.

SNAGS WILL DELAY PROGRAM TO HASTEN TARIFF IN SENATE

Sub-committees of Finance Committee Will Be Unable to Have Schedules Ready by End of Week.

Washington, May 24.—Senate finance committees have struck snags that already assure delay in the program to hasten the tariff bill to consideration in the senate. Chairman of the sub-committees said today that although no more manufacturers would be heard after Tuesday it would be impossible to have the schedules ready for the finance committee by the end of next week.

Some members of the Underwood have in the committee on schedules are being contemplated by the sub-committees. It is now being unlikely that the democratic caucus will be called until the week of June 24 and may delay the reports of the sub-committee until the middle of June.

Attack on the bill. Senator Lodge made another attack upon the tariff appropriation but today when it was taken up by the senate committee, he charged that a man—whom he did not name—already secured a place on a commission to make a tour of Crippleware, a town in Minnesota, was formerly a lawyer for a lumber company which, he said, had contracts upon which the commission would have to pass.

The fact that appropriations covering hundreds of thousands of dollars go to misadventures about in the end under misadventures would seem to indicate the necessity for a reasonably careful scrutiny of other of its provisions, said he.

GEORGE M. COHAN LEAVES THE STAGE

Well Known Actor Will Henceforth Give His Time to Play Writing and Theater Management.

Chicago, Ill., May 24.—With the fall of the curtain on "Broadway Jones" at the Grand Opera House tonight, George M. Cohan, author and star of the play, owner of the theater and, all in all, probably the greatest financial "winner" the theatrical game has ever produced, takes his permanent farewell of the stage. Hereafter the young actor-playwright-song writer-manager will confine his great energies to writing plays and managing the Cohan and Harris productions and theaters. The stage will know him no more as an actor.

Less than a score of years ago Mr. Cohan was a humble private in the ranks of the vast army of American vaudeville entertainers. Now, at thirty-five years of age, he is in the enjoyment of a fortune estimated as high as $2,000,000 and every dollar of it earned by his own efforts.

According to the calendar Mr. Cohan is a real live nephew of Uncle Sam, for he was born on the morning of July 4, 1878. The particular spot selected for his birthplace was Providence, R. I., and it was in the same city that he made his stage debut ten years later in a play written by his father, and of which his mother was the business manager. For several seasons following young Cohan, with his parents and sister, toured the vaudeville circuit under the name of "The Four Cohans." His first effort as a play writer was "The Governor's Son." It was successful and Mr. Cohan's career was assured. In rapid succession followed "Little Johnny Jones," "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," "Fifty Miles From Boston," "The Man Who Owns Broadway" and several other pieces which met with phenomenal success. As a writer of popular songs Mr. Cohan also has earned an enviable reputation and at the same time added many dollars to his pile.

NATIONAL COMMITTEE MEETING IS AGREED

REPUBLICAN EXECUTIVE BOARD PLANS ON SESSION SIXTY DAYS AFTER CONGRESS ADJOURNS.

None of Members Express Disapproval of Proposition Which May Result in a National Party Convention.

Washington, May 24.—After several hours discussion the executive committee of the republican national committee today tentatively agreed to call a meeting of the national committee sixty days after the adjournment of the extra session of congress to determine whether a national convention will be called to consider changes in basis of representation.

Practically unanimous sentiment developed in favor of holding the convention next year while the majority of the executive committee expressed the belief that the national committee could change the basis of southern representation and change the party rules, they agreed that the weight of a party convention should be put behind any reorganization plans. The committee will meet at an immediate convention but finally agreed with the others for next year.

The session of the executive committee was devoted almost entirely to a discussion of the need for a national convention. The committee of Michigan made the motion to call a meeting and practically every member joined in the debate that followed. There were no expressions of disapproval. The only questions were those of detail.

Members of the republican national executive committee assembled here today to take stock of the party since the November defeat, look over the field for the future and determine whether a meeting of the national committee should be called to consider the advisability of holding a special national convention.

Charles D. Hilles, chairman of the national committee, presided. He called the executive committee reached Washington early in the day and conferred with several republican leaders.

I have talked with only three or four members of the executive committee, said Mr. Hilles, and I find that some of them favor calling a meeting of the national committee. I am not sure that a majority are of that opinion. We must talk things over before making any prediction.

When the committee met it had a memorial from the conciliation committee of republican progressives, headed by Senator Cummings appointed for the purpose of the Chicago conference. This formulated a request that an early meeting of the national committee be called.

It included a statement of the reforms proposed at the Chicago conference. The primary system of selecting delegates to the national convention and change of basis of representation to conform to the voting strength of the party in the states. A change directed against the heavy representation from the south.

Upon the merits of the proposed reforms the executive committee does not pass as far as contemplated reforms. It is a matter of opinion. The only thing the committee may decide is whether to call the national committee. Many leaders assert that a convention is not necessary to plans, that the committee can enact the reforms. The progressive republicans, however, insist a convention is necessary.

NAT GOODWIN WEDDED FOR THE FIFTH TIME

Eride is Margaret Moreland, His Leading Woman on the Stage—Ceremony Without Any Frials.

Los Angeles, Calif., May 24.—Dismissing for the occasion the walking stick that has been his constant attendant since the accident which nearly disabled him more than a year ago, Nat Goodwin, the actor, smilingly underwent his fifth experience as a bridegroom today at his home in Ocean Park. The bride was Margaret Moreland, his leading woman on the stage, who was recently divorced from Charles Doughty, a real estate broker of San Diego. Just before the ceremony performed the ceremony. There were no wedding frills, just an unornamented legal ceremony in the presence of a few personal friends of the actor and his bride.

If an old hand at this business to want or need any decorations, said Goodwin. He smiled when told that the Wolff Hopper had beaten him, but he made no comment.

Japanese Emperor IS MUCH IMPROVED

Physicians S. toadeayTa Y; Otfisk Physicians State Today That There is no Cause for Alarm.

Tokio, May 24.—The condition of Emperor Yoshihito continued to improve today. The physicians in attendance declare themselves confident that he will recover from the attack of pneumonia which has been so cheerful. He takes nourishment regularly and his heart action is strong. Count Chiaki Watanabe, the imperial master of ceremonies today read to the emperor President Wilson's veiled message of sympathy which is also prominently displayed in newspapers.

The bulletin issued by the court physicians in attendance on Emperor Yoshihito at four o'clock this afternoon said: "His majesty's condition has improved. His temperature is 102.74 degrees Fahrenheit, his pulse 85 and his respiration 25."

HUERTA IS UNEASY UNDER RESTRAINTS OF THE PRESIDENCY

Old Friends in Army Believe That He Will Some Day Again Don His Military Uniform.

Mexico City, May 24.—General Huerta is chafing under the restraint imposed by the duties and ceremonies attending his office as President, and some of his old friends in the army will not be surprised if one day he throws off his tri-colored band and again dons the military uniform. It is said that the President, not fully satisfied with the progress which is being made against the revolutionists, is seriously considering the resignation of his office in order personally to direct the campaign.

That the army has not made any great advancement in restoring peace and carried out the campaign against Orozco a year ago, is pardoned by his intimates for believing that he could do the job more expeditiously. "I am not a man of governmental affairs," he is said to have remarked recently in the course of an impromptu address to a group of soldiers, "and every time that I see a body of men entraining, I long to go with them into the field."

Who would take Huerta's place as President is a matter of much speculation. His inability to find a man who would satisfy the people and display the requisite executive ability is what may prevent Mexico's soldier-President from abandoning the palace to play soldier. Diaz in the presidency probably would not improve the situation greatly, and certainly it would not please Diaz, since his occupancy of the provisional position has greatly lessened his chances of holding it.

The selection of Francisco de la Barras would please many of his intimate friends, but the Catholic party has its eye on de la Barra as a candidate for the presidency at some future time. When election came, the future of the army today is a problem. It was suggested that General Gervasio Trevino take the provisional presidency. But the General is getting on in years, and in addition he does not know the army.

Whether Huerta would do any better, however, in the field than his officers now are doing is regarded as by no means certain. He probably has an influence over the army greater than that of any other General, but the army today is a problem. It was suggested that General Gervasio Trevino take the provisional presidency. ALFONSO OF SPAIN IMPRESSES EUROPE WITH HIS COURAGE

Would Rather Risk Assassination Than Have Freedom of Movement Limited—Baseball Reaches Paris.

Paris, May 24.—Alfonso of Spain has returned home. His Paris visit was short but not so the memory of his fatalistic courage. When the King was told that George of Greece had been assassinated at Saloniki, his only comment was: "It will be my turn next. A close friend who heard this remark urged the king to agree never to go out on horseback unless accompanied by a strong escort. "It," replied the young monarch, "I am never to be allowed to go about as I wish. I can only hope that my turn will come quickly."

Five actual attempts have been made on the life of King Alfonso in the past ten years, the last occurring at Madrid, April 13 of this year.

Baseball has come to Paris and has taken the city virtually by storm. Negotiations are under way for the purchase of a ball park in the Bois de Boulogne. The game has been played in the Bois de Boulogne, but the American baseball vernacular is being translated into French.

Exhibitions. It is the direct result of a few years ago that the great American game witnessed near Paris recently. France was ripe for the innovation. Grafted on a newly awakened love for outdoor sports and living that has grown in France recently, baseball bids fair to become the most popular and fashionable method of its expression.

Several hundred curious spectators journeyed to Colomb a few days ago to see the game played officially for the first time under the auspices of the "Racing Club." As the match progressed the Parisians became more and more fascinated, and by the end of the game everybody present promised himself a try at the new sport, which will, in all probability, be officially adopted by the leading Paris athletic clubs.

TRIO OF MONARCHS AT ROYAL WEDDING

GERMAN EMPEROR'S ONLY DAUGHTER WEDS PRINCE ERNEST OF CUMBERLAND THIS AFTERNOON.

Three Most Powerful Sovereigns of Europe Attend Ceremony on Intimate Terms—Two German Houses United.

Berlin, May 24.—Princess Victoria Louise of Prussia, only daughter of the German Emperor, was married to Prince Ernest August of Cumberland with the rites of the Lutheran church at five o'clock this evening.

The ceremony which took place in the royal chapel at the palace seals the reconciliation between the dethroned house of Hanover and the house of Hohenzollern.

The presence of the three most powerful sovereigns of Europe, the German Emperor, the Kaiser, and the British king and emperors, on terms of intimate friendship made the event a demonstration of international peace.

The civil ceremony was performed half an hour earlier in the great electors' hall, a small room in the most ancient part of the castle. It was attended by only the immediate families of the bride and groom.

The short formal civil marriage of Princess Victoria Louise and Prince Ernest August of Cumberland was completed at exactly half past four in the morning. In the meantime the guests who were to attend the religious service had assembled in the octagonal chapel at the other end of the castle. The room was richly decorated with flowers.

States ambassadors were the United States ambassador, John C. Lehmann and wife and daughter; John C. Grew, secretary of the American embassy, and his wife; Captain Albert Niblick, American naval attaché; and Mrs. Yvette Berlin of New York, who was a schoolmate of the bride at the Empress Augusta Institute, and a dozen excited school girls whom the young princess insisted on inviting at the last moment to attend the ceremony.

At the conclusion of the civil ceremony the bride procession was marshaled into line by Count August Zulebner, grand marshal of the imperial household, and the bride, in a whole length of state apartments to the royal chapel. It was led by the bride couple, the princess' train being borne by four bridesmaids, the girls of the Ernest August.

After them came Emperor William with the Duchess of Cumberland, the Emperor's only daughter, the Empress Augusta, the Emperor Nicholas of Russia with Queen Mary of England, King George of England with Crown Princess Cecile, the Emperor William's only daughter, and the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, who was fifty or more princes and princesses of the royal blood.

Dr. Ernest Dwyer, the grand chaplain of the court, who had baptized Princess Victoria Louise, and prepared her for her confirmation, performed the ceremony which was the simple Lutheran rite. He then delivered the customary address of advice and admonition to the newly married couple.

As the rings were exchanged before the altar a battery of artillery stationed outside the castle fired a royal salute.

The prince and princess with Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria and the Duke and Duchess of Cumberland returned to the white hall of the castle, where they received the congratulations of the guests while seated beneath a canopy of small gables. The guests filed past them making profound bows and courtesies.

The bride wore a wonderfully worked gown of ivory lace with a court train of the same material embroidered with a myrtle and orange flower design and lined with ermine. The bride's veil, like her entire toilet, was white, while the bridesmaids wore a two-yard length of lace on which eighty Silesian girls had worked day and night for six weeks.

The last act in the robing of the bride was the placing of the crown upon her head. The crown worn by Russian princesses at their weddings.

UTILITY IS KEYNOTE IN MANUAL TRAINING

COURSE TAUGHT IN JANESVILLE SCHOOLS OF JANESVILLE IS MADE VERY PRACTICAL.

ENROLLMENT GROWING

Present Accommodations Taxed to Their Capacity—Assistant Secured for Coming Year.

Manual training is not new to Janesville. In fact the city was the second in the state, Eau Claire being the first, to introduce manual arts courses into the public schools. But the department has been modest and unostentatious. It has hidden its light under a bushel, and in consequence Janesville citizens, most of them, have forgotten that it has grown to a size and usefulness that its founders never anticipated, to say nothing of the cynics who derided this addition to the classical curriculum.

Starting with accommodations consisting of but one room and instruction by a teacher from Madison once a week, the department has grown until it occupies four rooms, already overcrowded, and an enrollment of forty-nine high school pupils and seventy eighth grade pupils, taught by an instructor who gives his entire time to that work. Beginning next fall, H. H. Coplan, the present instructor, who is a graduate of the division of engineering, Michigan Agricultural College, will be assisted by Charles Hill of Whitewater, who will take charge of the eighth grade work. Mr. Hill will also be principal of the day and night industrial schools.

Utility is the keynote of the manual training courses taught in the Janesville schools. Nothing is done for exhibition or mere display. All instruction has as its purpose, training in practical and improved methods, and the articles designed and manufactured by the boys are of a useful character.

Mechanical drawing, accuracy and neatness are the traits which the pupils are expected to acquire in mechanical drawing, in which is taken up in the freshman year of the high school. Considerable time is spent in ex-

Training in Metal Work.
Work at the forge is begun in the third year of the high school course. This year the pupils first took up the study of the building of the forge fire and the proper amount of blast for good heating. It being made plain that hard blows oxidized the iron. Then came the simple processes of "drawing" and "upsetting" stock at the anvil, bending, twisting, bolt heading, simple welding, chain welding, tool making and instruction as to the proper heat for tempering different kinds of tools. The boys made and tempered a quantity of lathe tools.

In the machine shop work was given in turning and filing at the bench. On the lathe simple turning, boring, turning on face plate, in chuck, and taper turning. Instruction in the use of the shaper involved strapping on piece and work, helical turning, and work with the grill press, drilling to line and with material strapped to table.

Eighth Grade Work.
Five different ward schools send their eighth grade boys to the high school building for instruction in manual training. The classes average about fourteen members, each having one period of eighty minutes each week. Because of the limited room it has been quite a problem to know where to store the unfinished work of the boys so as to avoid waste and loss. To overcome this difficulty instructor Coplan has tried to arrange useful projects that can be finished and taken away in one period. These assignments were all worked out beforehand and timed before being submitted to the class. Such useful articles were made as spoon holders, coat hangers, necktie racks, knife trays, mail boxes, boxes for fishing tackle and waste baskets.

The most successful assignments were those suggested by the boys themselves. When it was announced that waste paper baskets would be made the instructor said that he wanted unusually good work done as the schools needed the baskets. It did not want to keep them. The pupils were told that they could have them by paying for the material. Out of about seventy baskets made only four or five were not taken home by the boys and those were the poorest of the lot.

Equipment of Department.
Of the five rooms occupied by the department one is used as a draughting room, one as a workshop, one for wood turning and mill work, the fourth for the forging and machine shop and the fifth for a store room. The draughting room is equipped with sixteen individual drawing tacises with drawing instruments and lettering. The drawing for the most part is confined to the designing of articles turned out in the different shops. At the beginning of the year was appointed chief draughtsman to design with any help he could get a drawing cabinet for the use of the department. The class was then divided into groups, each with its foreman who oversaw the making of a drawing of a part of the cabinet. When the drawings were finished and approved the boys took them into the workshop to use as a reference in constructing their particular part of the cabinet. A strict record was kept by each student of the time spent at work, the cost and quantity of material used and the cost of labor (estimated).

More complicated exercises with the instruments were taken up in the second year after which drawings were made of patterns later to be constructed in the shop. In the junior and senior classes the pupils made drawings of standard bolts, threads, engineering curves, and machine parts which correlated with the work in the machine shop. Tracing and blue printing processes were introduced. The result of the instrument exercises with which the sophomore boys spent considerable time this year is clearly brought out in the superiority of their mechanical drawings over those of the upper classes who have not had the benefit of that kind of work. Before pattern making was taken up about two weeks' time was devoted to lectures on the elements of the subject. Consideration was given to materials, computation, tool processes and methods of working.

In the wood shop the fall term was given over to instruction in the use of tools, their care, and methods of procedure. A series of five exercises were constructed which involved accurate sawing and planing to gauge lines, squaring stock, etc. Application of the different kinds of joints to small pieces of furniture was taught and practiced in the winter term, and during the last term the boys have been occupied with the construction of the drawing cabinet mentioned above. Besides this several pieces of furniture were made for the school and repair work done.

The shop work in the second year consisted of wood turning and pattern making. After practice work that required the use of different tools in the different shops, the exercises were made to hold the thread in the sewing department upstairs. One being supplied for each table. These do away with waste and prevent the spoils from being lost or misplaced. The past term has been devoted to an elementary course in pattern making, and the boys are now at work on patterns and core boxes for cast iron pipe elbows. Because of the large number of boys enrolled and the few lathes available they have been permitted to work in pairs. It is planned to continue the course in pattern making into the junior year.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

SANITATION.

The warfare of this age is against disease germs, dirt and insanitary conditions.

We swat the fly, drain the swamp, clean up the refuse heaps and back alleys, get rid of the breeding grounds and carriers of microbes.

This is all good, wholesome and necessary, only it has not gone far enough. It has not gone far enough in a physical way. The whole nation should take up the crusade and literally clean house.

But especially—
It has not gone far enough in a mental way. We should have sanitary thoughts.

Nor has it gone far enough in a moral way. We must lead clean lives. We must do this for reasons of public health if for no higher considerations.

We must get disease not only out of our back yards, but out of our minds. We are coming more and more to recognize the value of the factor of psychology. We are doing this in business; in the school and in our sizing up of our fellow men. We must also do it in the matter of health.

Man is not solely or chiefly physical. His mentality is the distinctive and dominating thing in his makeup.

Therefore the sanitary movement must include this most important part. It must be not only of the outside, but of the inside.

The mind has a greater control of the body than any of us has perhaps realized. Why cannot this control be used for health?

In the last analysis this is a matter for each individual. It should not be left to practitioners who ply their trade for money. It should be a thing of common knowledge and common practice.

We should get over our fear of imaginary things. There is nothing to be afraid of except ourselves.

All the good of the universe is for us if we are for the good of the universe. We suffer only what we ourselves create. If it seems otherwise we have not looked far enough. We are more complex beings than we realize, and the causes lying in may reach back farther than we imagine. We manifest that which we are. We live out that which we have fashioned.

The only thing for us is to get to harmony with the mental, moral, physical and human law. We must think health, righteousness, success, wholeness on every plane and faith in each other and in the soul of things.

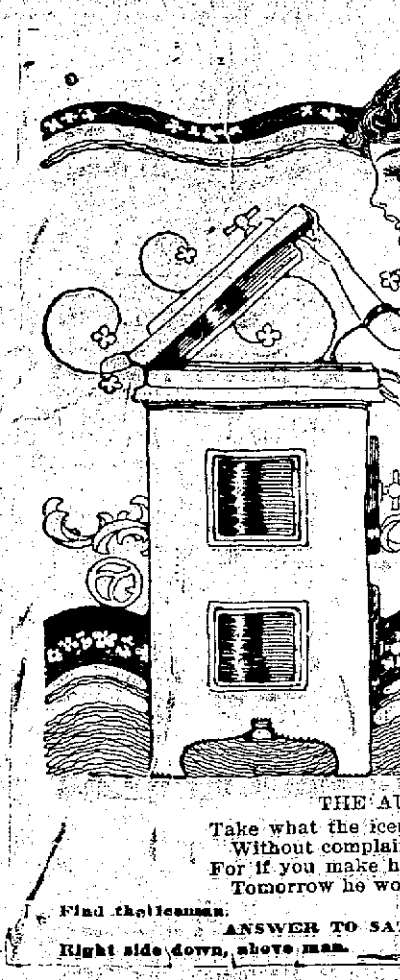

Let us have sanitary surroundings by all means. But let us also have sanitary minds.

Major Phaulstick (of the Indian army)—"Toll your scout-master that now I'm home, I shall be blessed to help him, it's like it, with field work and so on." Horace (of the Boy Scouts)—"Thanks, awfully, dad, but—er—are you quite up-to-date?" Drill sergeant, a lot since you were home last."—Punch.

Origin of Present-Day Games.
Though we get our games of tennis from the eastern countries, most of our games of bat and ball come down to us from the ancient north. Ring games and games in which light objects are thrown come also from forest countries, where the spear was a familiar weapon. But all of them alike appear to have in origin to early experiences of the race by which they worked out their salvation.

Warning to Bers.

When the man upon whom you are calling begins to drum on his desk with his fingers, he is not drumming "the devil's tattoo" at random. He is ticking out a clear, emphatic telegram, hot from the wire—"Will this fellow never go?" Its meaning never changes, and you ought to understand it at the first flum.

DOCTORS FAILED

Catarrh and Stomach Troubles Relieved by Peruna

Mrs. John Underwood, R. F. D. 2, Box 90, Waverly, Ohio, writes:

"I have had catarrh and stomach troubles, and having suffered very much, I, after being doctored a long while as a last resort, took Peruna. The result was wonderful. I would highly recommend it as a good remedy. I still use Pe-Mrs. John Underwood, Peruna and would not be without it. I always have it in the house."

Catarrh of Head and Throat.
Mrs. L. A. Gray, 137 Main St., Monasha, Wis., writes: "I was troubled with catarrh of the head and throat for so many years that I thought there was no cure for it. Mother suggested that I try Peruna. I bought a couple of bottles and decided to see what it would do for me. I am a healthy woman today, thanks to Peruna."

Persons who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Peruna Tablets.

Removing Mildew Stains.

Soaking mildew stains in buttermilk or sour milk will many times remove them, but not always. Try a solution of one heaping teaspoonful of chloride of lime to a quart of soft water; strain, when well dissolved, and dip the mildewed spots in it until the stains disappear, then rinse immediately and thoroughly in clear water.

To Keep Silver Bright.

Silver will keep bright and much laborious cleaning and polishing saved, if once a week it is immersed in sour milk and left there for twenty minutes or longer. Wash it in very hot water and polish as quickly as possible. Soft pieces of old flannel etc. are excellent to use in wiping and polishing silver.

Emergency Plea.

One night Marjorie and her sister were enjoying a pillow fight before going to sleep. They had been told repeatedly to be quiet. Finally their mother could stand the noise no longer and started for their room. They heard her coming, and five-year-old Marjorie dropped down on her knees beside her bed and said: "Oh, God, please turn me into a mouse, so I can hide under the bureau!"

"Canna Ye Boo, Ye Brute?"
Rev. Maxwell Nicholson, when minister of an Edinburgh parish, was called upon to marry a couple in humble life, and in the course of the ceremony he thrice asked the bridegroom whether he took "this woman" as his wedded wife without eliciting a reply. At last the patience of the bride was fairly overtaxed and she thus politely addressed her lord and master, in the hearing of the assembled friends, "Canna ye boo, ye brute?"

The Boosters' Primer

It is commonly assumed that working men in general are less concerned in the growth and upbuilding of their town and that such matters are of benefit for the merchant and professional class only. Whether the town does ill or well is supposed to concern them little. So long as they hold their jobs they may remain contented and "We should worry."

Now, this idea is wholly erroneous. The facts are clearly against this line of reasoning. There are both material as well as economic reasons why workingmen should be as much interested in the well-being of their community as the business and professional men. In the first place it is a proven fact that the larger the town—industrially speaking—the greater is the earning power of the workers. In the second place, their homes become more valuable with each addition in population; often enabling them to rent out a spare room or two. Also, it becomes easier for them to apprentice their sons to a good trade and find profitable employment for the girls. These questions are of vital interest to a workingman's family. To rear children is an easy question along side of the question of preparing their future.

It is to the interest of every working man in Janesville that its industries are well supported, its commerce patronized and its well-being protected. The workers are the most numerous class of consumers and consequently a potent factor in the absorption of the home made goods. Every time a working man buys an article from a home merchant, and especially when such an article is a home made one, he not only strengthens his hold upon his own job, but creates other jobs for his sons and daughters.

George Mullin, in new surroundings, ought to win several games for the Washingtons. Chubby George, however, his usefulness at Detroit. He did not get along well with Jennings, either.

Christy Mathewson went 49 innings without issuing a base on balls. How's that for control?

Gus Christie, the Milwaukee middleweight, is an all-around athlete—a good swimmer, a splendid handball player, a good football man, a star base ball player.

Joe Mando's knockout by Bud Anderson clearly shows that a boy must take care of himself if he would win a championship. Until a few months ago Mando was looked upon as a star lightweight, but since that time he has been beaten several times. The only reason for his fall is rosy nocturnal trails and too much popularity.

It is timely to observe that Bud Anderson, the Medford, Ore., farmer, is good hot at this time for the 33 title. Anderson has knocked out Sammy Trott, Kaye Brown and Joe Mando in quick succession.

The New York Yacht club having accepted Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge for an America cup race in 1914, Sir Tom may now get busy and plan a boat that will give the American boat a harder skirmish than it has had in the past.

Ty Cobb may have lost his throwing arm, but as long as he continues to bat and steal bases in perfect fashion there is no cause for believing that Ty will be returned to the minors.

Raymond, Heimbaugh, the crack two-miler of the University of Michigan, showed some nervous when he defeated Syracuse runners in the two mile race in the dual collegiate meet.

last week Heimbaugh ran the race with a broken ankle.

On paper, the British polo team, which in June will attempt to lift the international polo cup from the American team, does not look to be as strong as the American players. The Britons will have this advantage, however—an unsurpassed collection of polo ponies.

Carl Zamlock, a recruit pitcher with the Detroit Tigers, pitched his first major game the other day and bounded into fame by nearly beating Walter Johnson. Zamlock would have won his game but for errors. He comes from Missoula, Mont., in the United States. The largest crowd that ever saw a game at Detroit faced Zamlock in his debut, but he was not dismayed.

Hughie Jennings, touts his short stop Oscar Vitt to be one of the greatest infielders, extant in a year or so. Vitt is the lightest player in the majors, weighing only 135 pounds. He is a sure fielder.

The Philadelphia Nationals have almost set a record for picking choice pitching material. In 1910 Doolin got the veteran Earl Moore, from the International League and Moore hurled a great ball. In 1911 Alexander and Chalmers, two stars, were discovered. In 1912 Eppa Rixey came to the front. This year Doolin has a dandy in Seaton.

Luther McCarthy and Gunboat Smith, for the heavyweight championship of the world, is the next pugilistic event of importance. By beating Bombardier Wells, Smith won the championship of England, South Africa and Australia and through whipping Jess Willard, Smith removed all obstruction between himself and a match with McCarthy, who is the American champion.

MATINEE RACES ARE TO BE HELD MAY 30

Resume of Weekly Horse Dope—String Coming From Milwaukee State Fair Track.

By G. E. (Buck) Hunter.

If present plans are carried out, the lovers of good horse flesh will have an opportunity on Friday next, Decoration Day, of witnessing some fast machine races on the ball time track at the Park association track. Secretary Ruman is hard at work arranging a program and has been promising the support of the various trainers who are working out their coils. They promise to start some of their best ones for the noon race and a few should prove an interesting affair.

Dr. Jack Settor, of the Savage stables at Savage, Minnesota, who looks after the interests of the world's champion pacing team Minor Blair, 1:58 1/2 and George Gano, 2:02 winner, Janesville today on a hurried trip to look over the bunch training here and also to investigate the reports of the excellence of the track that has become widespread since Janesville began to seek the state fair location. Janesville is a new training headquarters and Dr. Settor expressed himself as much pleased with the training plant, the track and spoke most highly of all the horses and as to the location of the grounds. It is possible some of the Savage youngsters may be given a tryout here at the August meeting.

One of the biggest boosts the track has received this spring came when Dr. Mitchell of Milwaukee, who has trained his string at the State Fair track for four years past, came to Janesville this week, investigated conditions and then made arrangements for sending to him his most promising youngsters here about June 1 to go into active training. Coming from Milwaukee this gives the local track quite a boost in the horse world as a training headquarters.

Dave Griffin moved to the track last week with his three head of colts: two by the Rex 2:17 1/4 and one by Ed Custer 2:10 1/4 most promising youngsters which give promise of good speed and endurance.

The past week has been unfavorable for much out of door work; the trainers contending themselves with giving their charges merely a little work between showers. I had hoped at this time to go into detail and give the readers a little real dope on some of the fast and green horses now in training.

I owe apologies to trainers Joe Held, N. Erickson, Dr. Wanfle and others that there was no mention of their strings in last article. It was only through lack of time and space as they are worthy of much notice. Joe Held has ten head at work. Most of young horses which he has in charge for all his charges he like most trainers, one especial pet and this one happens to be a two year old filly by Cochrane 2:11 1/4 owned by John Souman of this city. While the young Miss is really broken she has an oily way of going and it is to be hoped she will be the equal of her illustrious sire.

N. Erickson has a select stable owned by Mr. Tubbs of Chicago, and the stable consists mostly of young things. Nick is having his hands full but promises to make a most creditable showing when the bell taps. Dr. Wanfle has his Miss Logan, with a mark of 2:24 1/4 a charge of his brother. Miss Logan looks fit and is present time to reduce her record several seconds and promises to be in the money all the time this summer.

Formal Opening on Decoration Day Promises to be Most Interesting for Players.

Friday, May 30th, Decoration Day, marks the formal opening for the first of the Snipsippi Golf Club. The games committee have taken considerable pains to arrange the schedule for the coming season and anticipate much interest will be shown in the events. A new trophy cup is to be played for this season, donated by A. J. Harris and with the Lane trophy, a Valentine cup and other annual events, should keep the interest up. On Friday next there will be a novel match called the Tomb Stone match. All players are eligible as it is to be a handicap affair. All scores made in the match are to be turned in at Baker's drug store as they will be used for a qualifying round for the Lane cup match, which follows immediately in the summer's events. The first round of match play for this cup will be June 2. The games committee have decided to set aside Monday as Ladies' Day and on this day lady players will have the right of course, men playing will have to allow them to pass through. Mixed foursomes will have the same rights as individual lady players. On June 16th comes the annual play for the Tom Morris cup. There will be eight players and eight substitutes, all named by the games committee competing. On Tuesday, June 17, a mixed foursome will be played for prizes. The Morgan trophy and the new A. J. Harris cup will be played for later in the summer. The play for the Goats championship will begin June 1. Each member will play eighteen games and the one winning the most goats will be awarded the goats medal in the fall. The same rules as governed last year's contest will be in vogue this year. Taking it all in all the games committee have made arrangements for plenty of excitement during the early part of the season and it is understood the house committee plan many innovations and delightful events for the tenth hole.

Local baseball dopsters predict a victory for Janesville today when their favorite high school baseball nine line up against the speedy Palmyra team at that place. The team left this morning at ten-thirty and Coach Curtis stated on leaving that he could see nothing but a victory for the locals. It is sure that with support Connell will be able to pitch one of his masterful games today, as he did last Saturday against the St. John's Military nine. He held the cadets to two scratch singles and now that he is at his best, it looks like an easy game for Janesville. The lineup will be the best from the school, as Coach Curtis doesn't want to take any chances. Reports are few concerning the Palmyra bunch, so that the locals are somewhat skeptical. Barring victory, Janesville alone, if they are defeated, Coach Curtis suffers. The team was sent through a stiff batting practice this week, so that they are in the best of condition for the game. The team will return at six-thirty tonight.

The men who made the trip are: Captain Harry Ryan, J. Ryan, Connell, Falter, Stickney, Kennedy, Edler, Hemmings, J. Stewart, L. Stewart and Dalton.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside appears an account of how the inhabitants of DeKalb County, Illinois, have "chipped in" and hired an expert to go about among the farmers and show them how they can increase the efficiency of their farming. Following is an extract:

"On one farm we visited a young fellow asked for aid. The farm belonged to his father, who wasn't very enthusiastic about the agricultural expert. 'I wanted father to go over the place with us, but he thinks it would be a waste of time' the young man said. 'Call him and tell him we are about to start and wish to ask him some questions about the place,' the county adviser replied. Soon along came the father just as the expert was pulling out a sample of soil. 'Going to dig a well or are you looking for gold?' inquired the old man.

"I expect there is more gold in this farm than in some of the Klondike mines if we can only find how to get it out," answered the expert.

"On reaching the higher portion of the field and making a litmus-paper test of the soil, the expert shook his head. 'See that clover?' He pointed to the sickly-looking, shriveled clover at his feet. 'You'll have to give that clover some help if you want it to make a hay crop next year. Clover costs a lot of money.'"

"You have done work enough here for an eighty-bushel crop of corn, the soil expert said, 'but I doubt if you will realize forty bushels to the acre. Let's see what the trouble is,' he went on as he pulled up a stalk of corn. The root system was half eaten off. A little probing brought the offender to light—a white worm about a quarter of an inch long. 'That's a corn-root worm,' said the expert. 'You can't escape him where you are raising corn and corn year after year. Such a state of affairs never produces a pound ear of corn.'"

"I've been farming for forty years and that is the first time I ever saw any of those things," said the farmer. 'I've often wondered what made the corn look like that, too.'"

"Later on in the afternoon, as the expert was cranking his automobile preparatory to leaving the farm, the boy came to him and said, 'I believe you have converted Father. He just told me to dig out where we could get some limestone and rock phosphate and how much it would cost.'"

This simple story of how a boy converted his father to more progressive ideas in farming, is typical of the interest which has been aroused in many parts of the country.

The corn contest now being conducted by the Gazette, is one of many now in progress throughout the west, and the spirit which inspires them is a spirit of philanthropy prompted by a desire to encourage the boy and to elevate the standard of agriculture.

The fact is recognized today as never before that the soil of the average farm is rich in undeveloped possibilities, and that when cultivated with scientific intelligence, it discloses acres of diamonds so close at hand that they have long been overlooked.

Scattered over the state of Florida are garden spots where tropical fruits and vegetables flourish in great abundance. These choice spots are the show places of the state. They are photographed and scattered broadcast over the country to influence investors who have never visited the territory.

The city of Sanford, in the central part of the state, is the great celery district, where the land under cultivation sells for one thousand dollars per acre and where from four to six thousand acres is harvested yearly.

years, and there are many old farmers today who are as ignorant and as indifferent as the DeKalb county farmer who had never seen a cut worm.

Corn contests are educators, and every last boy who takes part in one, is attending a summer school of the most practical sort, and the knowledge acquired will not only stimulate ambition, but will add to his stock of intelligence as well.

It is gratifying to know that while efforts are being made to get the farmer out of rut, and give to his boy a larger vision, and a broader horizon, that the boys and girls from industrial and commercial homes are not being neglected, and today all over the land, the great trend of education is toward the masses, and the new methods introduced are of the most practical kind.

Professor Beardsley of Chicago, for many years at the head of the manual training department, in that city, drifted into the Gazette office, the other day with a strong wooden box which looked very much like a tool chest.

The box was filled with all sorts of devices made in the manual training rooms of grade schools, from illustrated lessons prepared by Professor Beardsley, and with little or no aid from the teacher.

"The work wrought out so cleverly and so faithfully performed, expressed more than the finished product, for it spoke of the unfolding of genius, and the starting of a life, soon to become active, along the lines most likely to lead to success.

Professor Beardsley's system is the text book in many of the large city schools, and is being liberally adopted wherever introduced. It combines with the practical the human interest side of the great instructor, and the simple text appeals to the heart of child life.

The brain which thought out this wonderful system, and the mind which put it in execution, was inspired by a heart in sympathy with the great army of irresponsible life, waiting for admission on the threshold of the next generation.

There is dawning upon the mind of many educators the fact that while the products of the soil are being multiplied, through intensified methods, and our live stock is being brought to perfection, through scientific breeding, that the field of larger possibilities—the intelligent training of child life—has been neglected.

It is estimated that our school enrollment numbers today twenty-six million, and that ninety-eight per cent of this great army will never go beyond the high school, while eighty per cent will graduate from the grades.

This is a prolific field, inviting the best thought and most intelligent action that can possibly be bestowed. The equipping of a life which stretches out for fifty or sixty years ahead, is a sacred trust, for destiny is in the balance and the equipment, or lack of it, is often responsible for results.

The average boy when he leaves school is aimless and purposeless. Why? Because the school and the home failed to discover that the boy possessed special ability along any lines, and so he is turned loose to accept the first job that offers, and if he does not become a drifter he will be in great luck.

The common schools of the land owe it to every boy who graduates from the grades, to help him to discover himself, and the boy needs help along this line, as much as he will ever need it in any crisis of his career.

The great army of girls in our public schools along with the masses, more than boys, because the demand for work is not so urgent. A great majority of them will be home-keepers, a decade hence, and the ability to sew and to cook is worth more to them than a preparation for the university, which they will never enter.

The young life of the nation is virgin soil. It is raked over and cultivated by all sorts of implements. That the harvest is often disappointing is not at all surprising.

When the importance of this rare garden of opportunity, with all its possibilities, is more fully recognized and appreciated, the army of drifters will be succeeded by a host of intelligent workers.

The Bible: What It Is

By REV. WILLIAM EVANS,
Director of Bible Course,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—II Tim. 3:16

The Bible is the Book of God and religion. There are other books besides the Bible. We are told that we have God to us, e. g. the book of nature; and the book of providence. We admit that nature reveals God to us. That the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament shows his handiwork, we do not for a moment deny. Nature is vocal with theology. Nor would we think of contradicting the statement that God manifests himself through history and providence. Victor Hugo said: "Waterloo was God." By that he meant that God showed his hand in that great war and turned the stream of civilization into another channel. The history of all nations is replete with marked interferences of God. Promotion cometh neither from the east nor from the west. It is God who setteth up one nation, and putteth down another.

The knowledge of God that comes to us from these sources, however, is not sufficient fully to satisfy the human heart. Nature tells us of God, but does not adequately describe him to us. We might infer from the divine manifestations in history and providence that God is a great force or power, but such a definition of God by no means satisfies humanity. We need some other and deeper vision of God. We need to know something about his person, nature and attributes; his relations with his creatures; what things are pleasing and what displeasing to him; what are his ethical, moral and spiritual standards. To these questions not nature, nor history, nor yet providence affords an answer. Nature may show the hand and wisdom of God, and providence and history the hand and power of God, but we need a revelation such as we have in the Bible to reveal to us the heart and the grace of our God.

Sometimes the Bible is compared with other sacred books—Bibles of other religions; the Koran, the Vedas, etc. There can be no real comparison. The Bible is not to be put on the same plane as these books. None of them claims for itself what the Bible claims for itself, nor did any one of their authors claim for himself what Jesus Christ, and the inspired writers of the Bible claim for themselves. The Christian must be very careful in the matter of comparing his Bible with other sacred books. Such comparison is attended with grave danger. There is practically no difference, so far as the disastrous effects of such comparisons are concerned, whether you drag the Bible down to the level of these other books, or lift these other books up to the level of the Bible. The effect is the same; you rob the Bible of its unique character and authority. Let us be careful in this matter.

The Bible is not only the book of God, it is also the book from God. At least this is the way in which it gives its own account of its origin: "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God"—that is to say, is "God-breathed" (II Timothy 3:16). Again, in II Peter 1:20, 21, we read: "Knowing this first, that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation (or origin), for it seems clear that it is to the source rather than to the exposition of the scripture that reference is here made). For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man, but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." Here are some very clear and definite statements concerning the source of the scripture. It is this "God-breathed" element that differentiates this book from all other writings. The Bible is quite often referred to nowadays as splendid "literature." Well, the Bible is that, but it is more than that—it is scripture. Literature is the letter; scripture is the letter inbreathed by the holy spirit. Just as in the creation of man we learn that man became a living soul when that frame of dust, as it lay on the ground, became inbreathed by the spirit of life from God. Man is dust inbreathed by Deity; and if you take away the spirit of life from man, he returns to dust. So is it with the Bible; it is the letter, but it is the letter inbreathed by God's spirit that makes that letter scripture. And when you rob the Bible of its inspiration you have nothing but mere literature left—you have no scripture.

The message of the Bible is a religious message. Its aim and purpose is to bring man, who has been estranged from God by reason of sin, back to the God from whom he has been estranged. The scriptures, which are given by inspiration of God, are for the man of God, that he may be instructed in righteousness; mark you, in righteousness, not in science, or art, or poetry, or history, important as these things are in themselves. We come to the Bible to find God.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

DE SOTO.

FERDINAND de Soto was a Spanish nobleman who closed an adventurous career by discovering the Mississippi river in about the same place where it now stands. Several people had tried to discover the Mississippi in the hope of getting a genteel drag out of the rivers and harbors bill, but all of them had died en route in a moist and precipitate manner. De Soto was the first white man who ever stood on the banks of the Mississippi with a fish pole and a mummy path and he had just begun to be able to tell the difference between a red horse and a crocodile when he lin solo and then all left for the Academy hall for the prom and reception. The Junior prom and reception given last evening by the class of 1914 proved to be the greatest social affair of the season. About a hundred couples participated in the enjoyment, and the music furnished by Hoeveler's orchestra of Madison was very highly appreciated. The hall was beautifully decorated in the class colors of the 1914 class, purple and white; one in the colors of the 1913 class, green and white. Many plants and ferns added very much to the beauty and made the hall seem very much home-like.

In one corner, two boys dressed in purple and white, dispensed, ice cold water from sanitary covers. Another corner was decorated with pennants and pillows, this being the resting place of many that did not dance. As this was the first Junior prom ever given by a Junior class, it is hoped that classes to follow will follow the example set by the class of 1914, who are certainly to be congratulated on such a splendid initiation of the festivity which is observed so much in other schools.

Miss Clara Severson of Madison visited over Sunday with friends here. Miss Martha Handke is visiting in Janesville over Sunday.

Miss Violet Trevorrath is visiting in Stoughton for a few days. Miss Ruth Krebs of Fort Atkinson is visiting with Miss Frances Mee for a few days.

The Men's Club of the Methodist church spent last evening with Arthur Clarke. A paper was read by E. A. Anderson, "Guarantee of Bank Deposits." T. W. North and W. V. Morrison gave short talks in discussion of Mr. Anderson's paper.

E. Wright, Darien; W. H. Fieber, Madison. Yesterday morning as the eight o'clock passenger train was pulling in a team belonging to the L. C. Whittier Lumber company became frightened by lumber falling off the wagon and ran into the train killing one horse instantly and hurting the other somewhat. The horse was one of the best that the lumber company owns.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT SCHOOL EXHIBIT

Several Hundred Persons Inspect Handiwork of Edgerton Students On Display Yesterday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Edgerton, May 24.—The industrial exhibit given in the grades and high school yesterday, being the first of the kind ever held here, proved to be a great success. About two hundred visited the grades in the afternoon and eight hundred the high school in the afternoon and evening. This is certainly a great encouragement for those in charge of the school's work because then they know that the people of the city are interested in this work greater strides to perfection will be made. The work has previously been described in this paper so all will know just what it amounts to. In the grades where basketry was taught many beautiful baskets were made; also a great deal of sewing was accomplished. This exhibit will very likely be an annual affair here and we hope that more interest will be given it every year.

was stricken by the cold, clammy hand of the cholera infantum.

De Soto was not much of a home body, but was continually trying to discover something which had gold at the other end of it. His entire time was employed in running down baseless press dispatches about vast deposits of gold which only lacked rail road connection and a saint, and finally got so that he wouldn't even come home to vote. De Soto accompanied Pizarro when that humane covote conquered Peru by killing off all of the male adults over four years of age, but he did not approve of a great many things that Pizarro said and did.

When De Soto decided to discover the Mississippi and thus pave the way for the pork barrel, he surrounded himself with firearms, gulfine pills and the flower of the Spanish nobility and sailed in nine kessels for Cuba. Where he left his devoted wife a prey to melancholy and the ardent Havana mosquito. Taking with him a number of peripatetic physicians, he struck Tampa, Florida, at the height of the tourist season, but one finding a hotel that he could stop at for two days in succession without selling the family plate, he began to walk in a northerly direction, and running into the father of Waters which at that time was not navigated by anything but the open-mouthed carp, he planted the Spanish flag upon its turbulent bosom.

At the same time that he discovered the Mississippi, De Soto made the acquaintance of a new brand of swamp fever which caused him some discomfort. He was a tall, bilious man with care-worn whiskers and a kind heart, which prevented him from slaughtering a great many people who needed it.

Something New.

"It may be trite and commonplace, though fitting to quote the well-known Wordsworthian couplet that the lives of great men all remind us how to make our lives sublime."

America's Greatest Endurance Car

Are You On The Point of Buying a Motor Car?

FOCUS your attention on the very newest Pathfinder—the car of proven quality. If it fits your conception of the highest type of automobile construction, then we have something of interest to you.

Your pride and enjoyment of ownership depends upon quiet elegance of design plus faultless construction—these are the most compelling features of the Pathfinder.

The addition of the Gray & Davis electric starter offers you another decided advantage—the Pathfinder applies this system with one tenth the usual number of connections—one rod, one bearing and one movement required to start the car.

A switch conveniently located lights your lights—the starting and lighting systems are absolutely independent of each other, and each is independent of the ignition. No part of your electric equipment is in constant motion. The separate units are designed to give maximum efficiency at all times.

Our local representative will be pleased to demonstrate conclusively why the Pathfinder—the only medium-sized high grade car built in America—was chosen by the United States Government to survey three transcontinental highways in one season.

The Pathfinder is America's Greatest Endurance Car. If you wish to investigate the Pathfinder further write for our "100 and 1 Reasons," or see our local dealer at once.

DART

Dart 1,500 lb. Canvas Top Light Delivery Motor Wagon $790
f. o. b. Factory. Made by Dart Motor Mfg. Co., Waterloo, Ia.

Gasoline is Cheaper Than Horse Feed if You Use a Dart Truck

The wonderful low cost of up-keep of a Dart is due to two features: First, low fuel consumption, delivering ample power for every requirement. Second repair bills have been practically eliminated.

When you consider that repair bills are usually the biggest item of up-keep of most motor trucks, you will have one reason why the Dart is the most economical as well as the most efficient and reliable method of delivery on the market.

Read this letter from the Delavan Ice Cream Co., of Delavan, Wis.:

Dart Mfg. Co.,

Waterloo, Iowa.

Gentlemen:—Some six months ago I purchased an Auto Truck machine, called the "Dart," from Mr. Hebbe, of Delavan, who is agent for them. I have used this machine every day since, through all kinds of roads, up hill and down, running it on an average 75 miles a day, and have never been "stuck," yet I have not paid out a cent for repairs so far, and generally carry from 1,000 to 1,500 pounds on my regular trips, delivering ice cream. I can cheerfully recommend the "Dart" to anyone as a good, reliable truck.

KLAW AND ERLANGER HAVE LEASED A SITE

TO BUILD HUGE HIPPODROME
WHERE PLANKINTON HOTEL IS NOW STANDING.

LARGEST IN MILWAUKEE

Second Street Structure to be Sixteen
Stories High—Schandelin Property
Sold to Hotel Man
(By Ellis B. Usher.)

Milwaukee, May 24.—The week has brought out what appears to be the final plans of the people who have leased the site for the Plankinton Hotel. The plans are being made in the air that they were also leasing all the other property in the block. This is now denied, and it is announced as definite that the first thing done will be the building of a hippodrome at a cost of $750,000, which will have two floors and no gallery, and is expected to seat 3,500 people. Klaw and Erlanger are announced as the lessees and they are to have the building completed by the fall of 1914.

At the same time a new hotel on the Second street corner is to be built. It will be sixteen stories high and have 750 rooms.

Still another hotel proposition came to the city last week. The Schandelin property on Grand Avenue, having been sold to a hotel man, who will presumably make a family hotel of it. It is located for such a purpose. The new hotel will be much larger than any play-house in the city and will seat almost half the number of people that the Auditorium can accommodate.

It was suggested last week, the growth of Milwaukee has been very rapid, for a decade, and it is increasing with an accelerated pace. Unless one stops to reckon up, this growth is realized. When one reckons, for instance, that the daily newspaper circulation of Milwaukee has gone, within a decade, from less than 125,000 to fully 250,000 copies, a day, it means that there are a great many more people here now than there were. The increase of telephone service, which has doubled since 1906, the increase of street railway business, of banking assets, or any other measure of city growth will show up for Milwaukee, that she is rapidly becoming a great city.

Art Exhibition Closes.
The closing exhibition of the season was held at the Layton Art Gallery. It is an exhibition quite above the ordinary, and of more merit than Milwaukee has hitherto seen from local talent. This is due, in part, to the fact that a committee of Chicago artists made the selections of pictures to be hung, so that no favoritism could creep in. It is undoubtedly true also that the influence of the Society of Artists, during the past two seasons, is having its effect in stimulating better work.

One hundred ten paintings are hung, representing the work of thirty-five artists, all of whom live in Milwaukee. Mr. J. M. Bayfield, being the only exhibitor from outside the city. Others would be welcome, and it is hoped that his example may be followed.

It is notable in this exhibition that the three pictures receiving special mention, two, the first and third, are by Gaetano Busiacchi, and Francesco J. Spicouzza. These two young men are products of the Italian colony of this city. Both began their art as "venders." They illustrated what has frequently been said of our Italian citizens, by those who know them intimately, that they bring with them both an artistic taste and a familiarity with artistic objects quite unusual among us.

The second honorable mention of the judges was for a portrait of Frederick Larson, by George Rabab, director of the Layton Art Gallery. All in all, the exhibition is a most gratifying one, and it is already assured that the close of the season, which is June 15, will make a new record of attendance for this year, exceeding 20,000 visitors.

May Establish Scholarship.
The Harvard Club of Milwaukee, of which the Rev. Holmes Whitmore, is president, are anxious to furnish a scholarship of $200 for the freshman year to some capable and ambitious young man. Harvard University has the greatest endowment of any institution in the country, and those who are familiar with its affairs, say that the institution in the country has so many opportunities for students to assist themselves through college. President Lowell is authority for the statement that nearly two thirds of the students of this institution pay for their own way entirely or in part, last year, by their own earnings. The circular upon the subject, issued by the local committee, of which the Rev. W. P. Greenman, of 684 Astor street, is chairman, says:

"We want to assign our Milwaukee Scholarship to a boy who knows and loves his Wisconsin. In Harvard there is ten times the interest in the Wisconsin State System of Public Education, the public utilities and industrial commissions that there is in Wisconsin for anything New England has to offer. We want a boy who can go to Harvard in a loyal and representative capacity."

An Erie Advertisement.
The Erie Railroad Lake Line steamer F. D. Underwood, which is the flagship of the fleet, is expected in port tomorrow on her first trip to the east. Both the Underwood and the Delos W. Cook, a sister ship, have been thoroughly overhauled during the past winter at Buffalo, and equipped in the most up to date manner, especially to handle the package freight. Much labor has also been expended in putting in boilers and fuel saving devices, so that their power has been increased and economized as well. Those who have seen the boats, say that their exterior appearance is also much improved. Without going into details, it is evident that the Erie fleet is not only to be the largest running into this port, but that it is the most up to date and up-to-date in every particular.

The Milwaukee Health Department has issued orders, in conformity with the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court, upholding the Wisconsin law, to compel the vendors of milk to submit their cows to the tuberculin test. It can not be brought to enforcement before fall, it is said, as the law in the winter the test will be efficient. Legislation of this sort, to protect the public from diseased milk, and to compel the sale of unadulterated food is worthy of the utmost attention and care on the hands of the proper officers. Farmers and dairymen who attempt to sell diseased milk are fit subjects for severe penalties.

Short Notes.
Through the generosity of Miss Mary L. Atwood, the Milwaukee Public Library has recently come into possession of a practically complete file of the Madison Journal, which her father Gen. David Atwood, edited from 1852, to the time of his death, in the early nineties. Such files are of the highest value, in the preservation of current history.

Late bond issues are providing against the income tax. Formerly bonds guaranteed the purchaser against any deduction of income on account of taxes. Now they will except this tax because it is the plan to collect it at the source.

In the municipal election in Los Angeles, in March, the total qualified vote was 161,000 and but 31,000 voted of the highest record. Other propositions polled less than 20,000. Evidently the women vote in California is very much like the men.

VACATIONS VIA AUTO

OUTINGS IN MOTOR CARS BE COMING VERY POPULAR.

Riding is So Much More Pleasant and Individual Freedom Many Times Greater.

The motor car has settled, once and for all, that old question: "How shall I spend my vacation?" for thousands of people. Since the advent of the automobile the old jokes about harassed individuals being buried under avalanches of railroad timetables and literature do not apply. Nearly everyone is independent of the railroads nowadays, and the first breath of spring no longer means the beginning of a long and arduous study of railroad and steamship folders describing, with more or less accuracy, but much embellishment, the wonders and glories of various and sundry summer resorts.

When Martin begins "going out like a lamb" now the first thought of the prospective vacationist is "How's the car?" He sees no visions of long, hot and dusty rides in a stuffy railroad train to reach some overcrowded summering place. What stretches before his imagination is the vista of cool, shaded country roads, green fields, hills and valleys. How much cooler and more beautiful are these from the seat of a touring car than from the coach window. And how much more restful and pleasing is a quiet, secluded country place, far from the beaten paths of travel, than the usual summer resort, beleaguered by tired and dusty and disgruntled vacationists.

Every year thousands more Americans are taking their vacations in a motor car, and enjoying every minute of them. They come back from those trips rested in mind and body, refreshed and gloriously healthy from the open-air driving. With the introduction of the successful medium-priced car, hundreds of people of limited means, who formerly stayed at home because they could not afford, either financially or physically, an extended outing of the usual kind, are taking advantage of the bounty nature has provided for them in the open.

TO TRAVERSE THE COUNTRY

"Roads That Go Somewhere" Are Advocated By the American Automobile Association.

"Roads that go somewhere" is an expression which is being heard successantly in connection with the country-wide attention to the improvement of highways. Judge J. M. Lowe, president of the National Old Trails Ocean-to-ocean road, tersely summed up the matter in these words:

"A road extending across a township, of course, has value; it has increased value when it goes across a county; it has considerably increased value when it extends across a state; but it is of indefinitely more value when it extends from state to state, across the continent."

The advocates of this particular road across the country, which would fit into a system of national highways such as is contended for by the American Automobile Association national good roads board, believe in a comprehensive plan, even though, according to Judge Lowe, they are striving that their interstate avenue of communication ought to be the first one built.

"We don't stand for our road to the exclusion of any other road," states Judge Lowe, "and I want to say further that if there is any other line of road which ought to receive consideration first and which has greater claims than our road, as historic as it is, we are ready to get behind that road and stand for it just as strongly as we are ready to stand for the national old trails road. If I had my way about it, I would build a great national system of roads leading from our national capital to the capital of every state in the Union. I would stand behind that proposition until it went out through the country as the system we are in favor of. Some say that would bankrupt the government. Have you ever stopped to think what it would cost? Probably 18,000 miles of road will build a trunk line through every capital of every state of the Union. Put it at the highest possible figure, to build the best road that modern engineering has devised, making the average about $12,000 per mile. The western half of these roads will cost a whole lot less than the eastern half."

THE LATEST FASHION NOTE

Says: "It is a wise precaution against getting holes in delicate hosiery to powder the shoes before putting them on." Many people apply the famous antiseptic powder, Allen's Foot-Powder, into the shoes and find that it saves the cost ten times over in keeping holes from hosiery as well as lessening friction and consequent smarting and aching of the feet.

Describes a Visit To Camp At Vicksburg

The following letter from the files of the Gazette of fifty years ago, was written by J. W. Wingate, who was employed as a clerk at the war department during the war.

Near Vicksburg, June 14, 1863.
This is a lovely morning—the sun is shining brightly, the air is balmy and there is a strong breeze. Last Friday we were up at Yazoo, and upon arriving at the nearest landing which was near Gen. Grant's headquarters and here we received the intelligence that Gen. Grant did not wish the soldiers paid off until after the fall of Vicksburg, so the paymaster who had charge of the company, concluded that we had all better go back to Memphis that night. Major Bally and myself were bound to see the army and see the 12th battery before we left, as we did not know when we should return, if ever, and so we determined to persuade the party to detain the boat over day. They were opposed to it, saying that we could not get transportation passes. We told them that we believed that we could, went ashore and the first persons we met were Archie Glascock and Spencer Eldridge, who were now clerks in the quartermaster's department but were soon to go back to the battery. They said that they could rig the major and myself for the night, and would go on board and promise to supply them in the morning. So they consented to remain and we procured passes, mounted a mule, (for the first time) and with Glascock for our escort, started for Gen. McPherson's headquarters. We rode from five o'clock in the morning until ten before we found them, over a country such as I never saw before, up and down hills almost perpendicular, rough valleys and ravines, with lights from the tents shining above and sometimes the death us, and the booming of the guns all around.

We found Henry White and Norman Noggle, clerks at the quarters and stayed with them until morning, when we started for the 12th battery. We soon found the captain's tent, met Lieutenants Harlow and Amsden, Anderson, Dey and Fish, who appeared glad to see us. I assure you, they flew around and got us breakfast, and then we started for the first section. The whole army is in excellent condition, and have the best location in the whole country. How it was possible for them to drive the rebels out of their entrenchments is a mystery to me. The batteries are placed on the heights, while the tents, ammunition and stores are on the side hills and caves. Some have tents made by putting two rubber blankets together, a great many are formed out of canvas which grow here in abundance, but I should think that a tree would afford better protection in wet weather.

The foliage is fine, the trees very large and I should judge the soil very rich, blackberries are just beginning to ripen. Captain McBrie took us from the battery to the largest gun on the whole line, we stood near the gun for a long time, watching nine shells as they left it until they struck and exploded, with a fine ball singing over our heads. I had my coat off, stepped on the bank and whizz came a ball about six feet over my head. The rebels reply but very little artillery, but their sharpshooters are watching for every mark. Our men are within fifty yards of the rebels' working nearer every day.

We went back to the captain's tent and started for General Grant's headquarters. Before we got there we had good-bye to Henry and the captain. Lieutenant Harlow and went on our way, expecting that we should not see them again until the war is over, but we soon found one of our party who told us that General Grant had changed his mind and that we were to pay the troops, so we rode back to the boat, where we arrived about seven o'clock having seen and passed more than we expected to see in a life time. They all speak well of Henry and I think he is a favorite with them. The captain told him to stay with me as long as he pleased, and I should think that he was very kind.

We are now aboard, the John D. Perry, at Chickasaw Landing, instead of Sherman's as I had dated before. It is the spot where Sherman landed when he first attempted to take Vicksburg, and was repulsed so awfully that he said "I saw the battle ground yesterday. There is a man who is getting up to Memphis, who says he will mail this letter so I must close. I suppose we will be assigned to our duties tomorrow, and go right about paying."

They say today that John's army is largely reinforced and that a great battle is imminent. I do not fear the result.

For a Sick Child.
For a child or infant sick with brain fever or inflammation of any sort, where quietness is very important, take two ordinary bed slats, wrap them well with cotton or fine rags and place one on each side of the patient. Tie the arms and legs firmly, but not too tight to stop circulation, to the boards. This will keep the restless child in a perfectly quiet position and help greatly in the cure of the same.

Baptismal Custom.
A pretty custom is followed at baptisms in Heligoland. While a psalm is being sung, a procession of little boys and girls troop in, passing in front of the altar. Each child carries a pannikin of water, the contents of which are poured into the baptismal font. Thus all the child's future playmates contribute to the water with which the baby is admitted into the church.

Age of Pessimism.
"I had a talk with a pessimistic friend the other day. I don't think I ever met any one so completely soured on the world. He told me he doubted human honesty—that he didn't believe in the faith of man, nor the constancy of woman. Life to him was all graft and greed. He was very bitter. 'Your friend must have had a lot of hard experiences. How old is he?' 'Nineteen.'"

Twenty - Five Millions of Dollars

To this Extent the American People Have Set
The Seal of Approval Upon the 1913 Cadillac

This evinces such an overwhelming preference in favor of a single HIGH TYPE of motor car as against any one of more than two hundred other makes that it practically obviates the opportunity for comparison.

It means that more than twelve thousand motor car buyers after a critical analysis have recognized that the elements vitally essential to a real motor car are the dominant characteristics of the Cadillac.

It means more than twelve thousand motor car buyers after a critical analysis have recognized in the Cadillac:—

A car that is MANUFACTURED and not merely an assembly of components.

A car whose maker is one of reputation and of stability.

A car whose parts are thoroughly standardized and thoroughly interchangeable.

A car of unsurpassed mechanical accuracy.

A car of dependability and of durability.

A car possessing a factor of safety so liberal that it withstands far more than should reasonably be expected of any car.

A car of luxury, a car of comfort, a car of convenience.

A car of elegance and refinement.

A car of simple and of easy operation.

A car of minimum depreciation and of maximum value as a useful product.

A car with which there is obtainable a REAL "service," both from the maker and from the dealer.

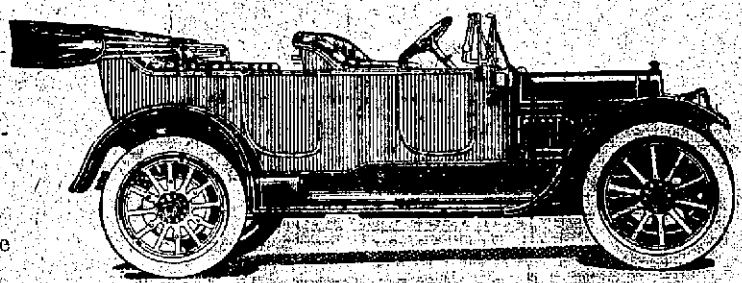

A car which offers the maximum of efficient service for the maximum time at the minimum cost.

A car which is "different" and which by reason of the "differences" commands a position uniquely its own.

A car whose merit is not confined to one or a limited few "talking points," but rather a car of super-excellence in its entirety.

A car which will uphold in abundant measure the wisdom of those who have honored it with their seals of approval.

A car whose distinctive characteristics are obtainable only in the Cadillac itself.

SKIN ERUPTION CAME ON CHEEK

Started in Pimples. Nearly All One
Cheek Solid Sore. Very Fretful.
Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment.
Face All Healed Up.

Kingsley, Mich.—"Last May my thirteen-month-old baby had a sore come on her cheek. It started in four or five small pimples and in two or three hours time spread to the size of a silver dollar. It spread to her eye. Then water would run from the pimples and wherever that touched caused more sores until nearly all one cheek and up her nostrils were one solid sore. She was very fretful. She certainly was a terrible looking child, and nothing seemed to be of any use. Then I got some Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. She tried to rub off everything we put on so that we would sit and hold her hands for two hours at a time, trying to give the medicine a chance to help her, but after I washed it with Cuticura Soap and then put on the Cuticura Ointment she seemed to soothe her and she did not try to rub them off. It was only a few days before her face was all healed up, and there has been no return of the trouble since. We thought that baby's face would surely be scarred, but it is not." (Signed) Mrs. W. J. Cleland, Jan. 5, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Municipal Affairs Of Vital Interest

INTELLIGENT CITY PLANNING NEED OF GROWING TOWN

How to make a more beautiful city as well as a good place to live in, was the central topic of a talk by D. J. Hart in Kansas City recently.

Mr. Hart said "Intelligent city planning has become a necessity in city life. By city planning I mean a carefully-studied plan adopted by the municipality for the physical construction of the city."

"We can no longer leave to chance or to private and selfish interest the question of how the city shall develop or what license the individual citizen shall exercise in the use of his own property within the city limits. We have building regulations, health laws, fire ordinances, factory regulations and soon we shall establish building restrictions."

"The demands of commerce and industry and protection of public health require that a city, to the same extent as a single building, shall be constructed on an intelligent and artistic well ordered plan. Such plan should take into consideration the necessities of the community; the requirements of interurban transportation of every kind; the enhancement of private values; the promotion of the city's growth and the intellectual and aesthetic culture of its citizens."

"One of the first conditions of the intelligent city plan is to facilitate communication and transportation. It means wider avenues in congested districts to avoid loss of time; means a proper system of rapid transit to all parts of the city; and means better architecture of public buildings."

"There should be no fear that a proper and practical plan will not follow itself on business principle. This community has learned that economic improvements wisely planned and economically executed are a profitable investment for the taxpayer. Our whole park and boulevard system has been developed by the motive power of profit to the property owner who demanded and paid for it."

"The question arises: 'Is such an undertaking possible of accomplishment?' Mr. Hart answered that nothing is impossible which the people of the city really desire. As soon as we realize that what the community needs it can afford, and we demand these things we will get them."

NEW MUNICIPAL MARKET PLANNED FOR CHATTANOOGA
(Chattanooga Journal.)

Chattanooga, Tenn., expects to establish a market in what is known as the South Side, an institution which it is said a large majority of the public demand. The proposed plan is for an enclosed market house and additional stalls on a so-called plaza, which would be roofed over. The building will contain sixteen stalls, each 12x16 feet, which can be divided into 2x8 stalls where desired. These will be placed on each side of a 12-foot center aisle. In this building also will be placed men's and women's toilet rooms.

"On the outside plaza the stalls will be in three rows, each containing eight 12x16-foot stalls, one row facing the sidewalk. Just outside of which would be another row facing a 16-foot aisle, on the other side of which aisle would be a row of stalls, which would extend to the rear property line. The building would have a concrete floor with a smooth cement finish, and a roof of wooden rafters and corrugated iron supported by 6-inch hollow cast iron columns, which would also serve as rain water leaders. The outer walls are to be double, of planks. A skylight will be placed in the roof to furnish additional lighting."

CITY OF SOUTH NORWALK PURCHASES OWN BONDS
(South Norwalk Conn.)

An unusual transaction took place here today when the city's electric works purchased $20,000 of outstanding currency bonds. This plan of buying up currency bonds through the municipal plan is being followed in other cities. It is pointed out that a new system of municipal business and will, if continued, eventually clear the city of debt, except for a sum which it will in reality owe itself.

EQUIP FIRE ALARM BOXES WITH LIGHTS
(Baltimore)

Baltimore has put into practice a clever little electrical scheme that undoubtedly will save considerable house timber in the course of years. A number of the outlying city fire alarm boxes have been equipped with 2-watt incandescent globes, which readily mark the location of the boxes for night emergencies.

These marker lamps are wired in groups supplied from the regular metered central station service of the nearest fire house. They are switched on at dusk and off at dawn by attendants on duty at the various posts. Policemen are also required to report any lamp that is burned out or broken. Small renewal stockpile kept at each fire house, and a fireman is sent out to replace the useless lamp as soon as it is reported.

PITTSBURGH COMPANY TO FURNISH UNDERGROUND CABLE
(Madison State Journal.)

The Standard Underground Cable company of Pittsburgh was awarded the contract for furnishing the fire alarm cables at a meeting of the fire and water committee of the council yesterday afternoon. The company bid $8.40 per 100 feet. The cable will be laid along Langdon street and West Washington avenue.

Women Police Assured
(Topeka, Kan.)

The city commission acting on proposals from the police advisory board, decided to appoint two women police officers to this city. The idea was started by the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon. Applications will be considered by the civil service commission.

Consider Municipal Plant
(Sheboygan Journal.)

The city council last evening unanimously passed the resolution to consider the railroad commission of Wisconsin to decide whether or not there are grounds to permit the city of Sheboygan to establish a municipal street-lighting plant. The Telgeer resolution to ask a permit was passed unanimously.

COMPANY DEMANDS PAY FOR CHANGE IN LIGHTS
(Racine Journal News.)

The Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company will not substitute goose neck lights for arc lights unless the city pays more for its change. The cost of making the change is enormous, and the revenue will not pay the interest on the investment. A former management of the company's lighting department is blamed for agreeing to substitute goose neck lights for arc lights and it is claimed that such management did not know what it was doing.

George Post of the Lighting company appeared before the common council last evening to present the proposed plan to install goose neck lights on Center street, Grand avenue and other streets. Mr. Post claimed the cost of such substitution would be $12,000. The city demanded such substitution for its lighting to the city would be increased $1,100. The cost of substituting goose neck lights for arc lights last year was $12,000. The city entered into a ten year contract in 1910 with the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company for street lighting.

MADISON WILL BOULEVARD EAST WASHINGTON AVENUE
(State Journal.)

The Madison of the future will be a "City Beautiful" if the plans Mayor Edmund Jennings put in practice on East Washington are adopted all over the city. The work of remodeling East Washington avenue is to start late this summer when the city will be the most beautiful street in the city, according to the chief executive.

First of all the park strips in the center of the boulevard are to be cultivated, put under the plow and planted for a time. Then when the plow of grass seed and a miniature grove is to be planted in each strip, and in one or two places a water fountain might be added to help appearances.

Next attention is to be given to the lawn outside the street curb. A line of trees as long as the street is to be planted on each side. The first work of this nature is being done this summer by the city. The city is in the work strip in front of their factory facing on the avenue.

LARGE TONNAGE PASSING THROUGH HENNEPIN CANAL
(Sterling Gazette.)

During the first twenty days of May the total tonnage passing through lock 19 of the Hennepin canal at Wyandotte was as follows:

Fifty tons of coal.
Four hundred and forty-six tons of oats.
Three hundred and sixty tons of corn.
Five hundred and twenty tons of concrete blocks.
One hundred and fifty tons of gravel.
Two hundred and seventy-two tons of salt.

This makes a total tonnage in twenty days of 1,789.

It is anticipated that all navigation records will be broken this year. When the lock is opened in the dam connecting Sterling and Rock Falls, so that barges and steamers can enter the manufacturing district of the twin cities, shipping on the Hennepin will get another big boost. Manufacturers and shippers are beginning to take advantage of the canal shipping rates and saving neat sums of money on every cargo.

The Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company will not substitute goose neck lights for arc lights unless the city pays more for its change. The cost of making the change is enormous, and the revenue will not pay the interest on the investment. A former management of the company's lighting department is blamed for agreeing to substitute goose neck lights for arc lights and it is claimed that such management did not know what it was doing.

George Post of the Lighting company appeared before the common council last evening to present the proposed plan to install goose neck lights on Center street, Grand avenue and other streets. Mr. Post claimed the cost of such substitution would be $12,000. The city demanded such substitution for its lighting to the city would be increased $1,100. The cost of substituting goose neck lights for arc lights last year was $12,000. The city entered into a ten year contract in 1910 with the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company for street lighting.

MADISON WILL BOULEVARD EAST WASHINGTON AVENUE
(State Journal.)

The Madison of the future will be a "City Beautiful" if the plans Mayor Edmund Jennings put in practice on East Washington are adopted all over the city. The work of remodeling East Washington avenue is to start late this summer when the city will be the most beautiful street in the city, according to the chief executive.

First of all the park strips in the center of the boulevard are to be cultivated, put under the plow and planted for a time. Then when the plow of grass seed and a miniature grove is to be planted in each strip, and in one or two places a water fountain might be added to help appearances.

Next attention is to be given to the lawn outside the street curb. A line of trees as long as the street is to be planted on each side. The first work of this nature is being done this summer by the city. The city is in the work strip in front of their factory facing on the avenue.

(Sterling Gazette.)

During the first twenty days of May the total tonnage passing through lock 19 of the Hennepin canal at Wyandotte was as follows:

Fifty tons of coal.
Four hundred and forty-six tons of oats.
Three hundred and sixty tons of corn.
Five hundred and twenty tons of concrete blocks.
One hundred and fifty tons of gravel.
Two hundred and seventy-two tons of salt.

This makes a total tonnage in twenty days of 1,789.

It is anticipated that all navigation records will be broken this year. When the lock is opened in the dam connecting Sterling and Rock Falls, so that barges and steamers can enter the manufacturing district of the twin cities, shipping on the Hennepin will get another big boost. Manufacturers and shippers are beginning to take advantage of the canal shipping rates and saving neat sums of money on every cargo.

CITY OF SOUTH NORWALK PURCHASES OWN BONDS
(South Norwalk Conn.)

An unusual transaction took place here today when the city's electric works purchased $20,000 of outstanding currency bonds. This plan of buying up currency bonds through the municipal plan is being followed in other cities. It is pointed out that a new system of municipal business and will, if continued, eventually clear the city of debt, except for a sum which it will in reality owe itself.

(Baltimore)

Baltimore has put into practice a clever little electrical scheme that undoubtedly will save considerable house timber in the course of years. A number of the outlying city fire alarm boxes have been equipped with 2-watt incandescent globes, which readily mark the location of the boxes for night emergencies.

These marker lamps are wired in groups supplied from the regular metered central station service of the nearest fire house. They are switched on at dusk and off at dawn by attendants on duty at the various posts. Policemen are also required to report any lamp that is burned out or broken. Small renewal stockpile kept at each fire house, and a fireman is sent out to replace the useless lamp as soon as it is reported.

(Madison State Journal.)

The Standard Underground Cable company of Pittsburgh was awarded the contract for furnishing the fire alarm cables at a meeting of the fire and water committee of the council yesterday afternoon. The company bid $8.40 per 100 feet. The cable will be laid along Langdon street and West Washington avenue.

Women Police Assured
(Topeka, Kan.)

The city commission acting on proposals from the police advisory board, decided to appoint two women police officers to this city. The idea was started by the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon. Applications will be considered by the civil service commission.

Consider Municipal Plant
(Sheboygan Journal.)

The city council last evening unanimously passed the resolution to consider the railroad commission of Wisconsin to decide whether or not there are grounds to permit the city of Sheboygan to establish a municipal street-lighting plant. The Telgeer resolution to ask a permit was passed unanimously.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

TOMORROW PEOPLE.

"W" HEN tomorrow comes it still will be tomorrow. "We are going to be so happy next fall," a friend of mine told me the other day. "We are going to move into one of those beautiful new apartments they are building on the Avenue, and I'm going to buy the best room furniture we have been saving up for so long, and at last I shall be able to entertain my friends as I want. It seems to me I can hardly wait for fall to come."

As I look back across my friendship with this young woman, I remember a time when she could "hardly wait" for the day to come when she and her husband were to leave the place where they were boarding and really go to housekeeping in their first little apartment; and before that, a time when she could "hardly wait" for her wedding day; and before that a time when she could "hardly wait" until July for the summer vacation which was planned in the spring.

"And when tomorrow comes, it still will be to-morrow." There are a great many people in the world who are always about to be happy. In the tomorrow of their fulfilled anticipations they are sure they will find happiness, and they are so intent upon looking forward that they quite forget to realize that today is the tomorrow of yesterday's anticipation.

The very best time to do kind deeds is today; the very best time to start any good undertaking is today; and the very best time to be happy is today, this hour, this minute.

An inhabitant of some other planet were to visit America, says Orison Swett Marden, "he would probably think that our people were all enroute for something beyond, some other destination, and that where they happen to be living is merely a way station where they unpack only such of their luggage as they need for a temporary stay. They are not really settled today. I do not really live in the city, but they are sure they WILL live tomorrow or next year when business is better, their fortunes greater, when they move into their new house, get their new furnishings or their new automobile, THEN they will be happy. But they are not really happy today."

That is a great indictment of the American people and I am afraid a just one. It is especially our national tendency to be too much of a hurry getting ready to live, to have any time left for living itself. "Tomorrow" is as much our falling as the Spaniards, only in a far different sense.

Anticipation has its uses, but it also has its abuses. Look forward to tomorrow's joy by all means, but don't look forward so eagerly that you miss the delights of today. Be happy this day, this hour, this minute. You are sure of that happiness.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am married two years. I love my husband and we were happy until a short time ago, when we moved next door to his folks. Now he is never home, but always over there—only comes home for his meals. What can I do?

(1)—Is it right to play for money with a low set of fellows? He says he sees no harm in it.

(2)—I keep my home neat, but when he comes home he swears at me and won't take the baby any more. When I cry he says I make him sick and when I am pleased he goes over just the same and thinks he is doing right. He spends his money so when pay day comes he has money left.

(3)—How can I get him to stop spending so much money? He said as long as he don't go with other women it is all right. The money is his because he earns it and can do what he wants to with it.

(4)—At first we saved to get started. I made all my clothes over so they would last; now I have none to put on any more. How can I make him buy me clothes? When I tell him he laughs at me and says, "I haven't any more money."

UNHAPPY WOMAN.

Move away from that locality, if possible.

(1)—The harm in this—that he will sink as low as the other fellows if he associates with them. From what you write I judge that he has already begun to sink for when a man loses respect for his wife and the mother of his baby, he is getting pretty low.

(2)—Don't give him the satisfaction of crying. It would be better to treat him pretty cool, as if he was a sort of stranger.

(3)—If you will take the matter to court your husband will find that it is not all right. When a man marries he takes the obligation to support his wife and family and all of the money he earns is no longer his own.

It belongs to the family. You have as much right to it as he has and any judge will tell him so.

(4)—He is probably being influenced by other men, and now, and doesn't care for anything else on earth. Weak-minded men get such spells, and it means misery for the wife and children. He may come to appreciate his home when the others have deserted him of everything he has. You can make him pay out a stated sum every week or month if you will go to the juvenile or probate judge and tell of your circumstances.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in distress; will you kindly advise me?

My best friend, Mr. B., who has nearly two thousand miles from here, wrote to me March 18th (after we had a "smash up") and signed his name "Yours as before," etc., and answered his letter immediately. Also I sent him a photo, just taken, so he would reach him before Easter. I have never heard from the letter, nor my photo. What must I do about it? Lovingly,

MOTHERLESS HELPLESS.

You might write him once more, my dear. Put your letter in an envelope with a return card on the back of the envelope. If he does not get the letter it should be returned to you by the postoffice. Also, his in this instance I would say, his letter tell him that you had written before, but that you got no reply to it, and wish to hear from him again, and you will govern yourself accordingly.

Sometimes we want a change from strawberries and cream and even the delicious shortcake does not look quite so tempting as at the beginning of the berry season. I must confess, however, that the above seemed wicked to cook strawberries as the flavor is partly destroyed when subjected to heat, but in order to give variety with this, the greatest favorite of all berries, many delicious ways of using them are desired.

Berries should be most carefully prepared for use, rejecting all that are not perfectly sound and firm. Put a few berries at a time into a colander and let cold water run over them; when all are washed drain and hull with a little five-cent strawberry clip, which is so sanitary to use and saves the nails of the fingers from staining. The berries are now ready to serve with berry sugar and cream, or serve, after washing, on their own leaves unaltered with a tiny dish of berry or powdered sugar. This is most attractive for breakfast.

Strawberry Timbales.

Make the timbale cases of any French batter, as for peas, and fill with berries, powdered sugar and a very little lemon juice. Top all with a little whipped cream and serve as a first course at a luncheon.

Strawberry Bavarian Cream.

Material—Heavy cream, 1 pint; mashed peaches, 1 pint; granulated gelatin, 2 tablespoons; powdered sugar, 2 cups; lemon juice, 1 teaspoon.

Directions—Cream to whip easily must be at least 36 hours old, of good quality and both cream and peaches must be cold. The basis of all Bavarian creams is the above proportions, no matter what flavoring is used. Cut sufficient berries to measure a pint. Cover the gelatin with a half cup of cold water; soak until it is thoroughly soaked, and then the teakettle to dissolve. Add it and the powdered sugar to the peaches and stir until the sugar is dissolved.

Whip the cream until stiff and carefully fold in the peach mixture. Add the sponge and sunshine cream with this.

In summer it is wise to stand this bowl in another bowl of cold water or cracked ice. Begin at once to stir slowly and carefully turning the bowl with your left hand and scraping the sides constantly with the spoon.

As soon as it begins to thicken turn it into the mold that has been dipped in cold water and stand in the refrigerator or in ice until perfectly set.

Turn out on an attractive plate and serve with whipped cream and some fresh strawberries. Mold if preferred in individual molds.

Strawberry Mousse.

Material—Strawberries, one quart;

gelatin, one and one-half table-

spoons; sugar, one cup; cream, one quart; salt.

Directions—Prepare the berries as directed, add the sugar and let stand in a cold place one hour, rub through the sieve and add the gelatin, getting it in a very little cold water and dissolved, about two or three tablespoons of water. Add this to the berries, whip the cream stiff and gradually stir or fold in the berry pulp. Stand in ice or in a very cold place while doing this.

Set individual covered molds in cold water and fill with the cream and salt for three or four hours. Be sure the molds are well protected from the salt. Chopped hazel nuts added to the whipped cream and the crushed berries used as a sauce makes a desirable change.

Cake Filling.

Material—Heavy cream, one cup; sugar, one-third cup; strawberries, one-half cup; white of egg, one; vanilla, one-half teaspoonful; lemon juice, one teaspoonful.

Directions—Beat the cream until stiff add sugar, white of beaten egg, washed berries and flavoring. Put between and on top of cake and serve at once.

Strawberry Whip.

Material—Strawberries, one cup; powdered sugar, one cup; white of egg, one; lemon juice, one teaspoonful.

Directions—Put all the given material at once into the cream whip and beat until stiff enough to stand in a bowl. It will take fifteen or twenty minutes, but is very easy to do with this whip. Turn it on a dish or serve in parfait glasses with whipped cream on top. Fine raspberry whip or prunes or a prune whip.

Material—Strawberries, one quart;

gelatin, one and one-half table-

spoons; sugar, one cup; cream, one quart; salt.

Directions—Prepare the berries as directed, add the sugar and let stand in a cold place one hour, rub through the sieve and add the gelatin, getting it in a very little cold water and dissolved, about two or three tablespoons of water. Add this to the berries, whip the cream stiff and gradually stir or fold in the berry pulp. Stand in ice or in a very cold place while doing this.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Things Worth Knowing.

Never run things that have been put through hot starch through the wringer—it injures the rolls.

For washing fine flannels nothing will make them look so nice as borax in the water, about half a teaspoonful of powdered borax to the quart.

Whichever box or boxes handy in the kitchen, it is much better to run to the broom to get a straw.

The Table.

Raisin Cake—One and one-half cups sugar, two-thirds cup butter, two-thirds cup milk, three cups flour, one cup chopped raisins, three eggs and 1½ teaspoons baking powder.

Cocoanut Cake—One cup of sweet milk; put one cup shredded cocoanut in milk, let it come to a boil, let cool, add 1½ cups sifted sugar, three eggs, three-fourths cup butter, three cups flour, sifted after measured (measure flour loose), three teaspoons rounding full of baking powder, one teaspoon vanilla.

Don't use the kind of baking powder that raises dough before it is put in the oven. Put sugar, eggs, butter, milk and cocoanut all in a crock before sifting, then sift flour in last, add baking powder on top of flour and beat till smooth.

Make a frosting from the whites of two eggs beaten stiff and three-fourths cup of granulated sugar; beat till stiff, add top and sides spritzed with cocoanut. This does not mix with whipped cream and cocoanut.

Stewed Lettuce—Trim off the outside leaves of a number of lettuces, blanch in boiling water, rinse in cold water and tie together in pairs. The lettuce lies together, a sauce can with buttered paper, put in the lettuce with a few herbs, a half cup of chopped onions, season and duce the heat and let the whole simmer for two hours.

The lettuce untie and place on a hot dish. Reduce the liquor in which they were cooked, strain through a sieve and pour over. Serve very hot.

Blackberry Bread—Open a jar of canned blackberries and heat to the scalding point. Butter, stale slices of bread, arrange on a platter and pour the fruit over them. Make two layers and serve very cold with milk or cream.

THEOLOGIES ATTACKED

Many Feel That They Are Antiquated
And Without Appeal to Present Generations—Some Opinions.

Current opinions concerning preaching and preaching theology, and its place in present day life are set forth in the following report of a hotel lobby conversation written by the Rev. J. W. Laughlin, attending the General Presbyterian convention at Atlanta.

Preaching and Preaching.
"It was Sunday afternoon. A company of us were sitting in the lobby of the hotel discussing the sermon which a New York divine had spoken from the text, 'There is no more sea.' One man said it was a good sermon; another said that a gospel which promised so much for the future ought to do more for the present; a third remarked that the sermon was an appeal to the emotions and that no man had the right in public discourse to appeal to the emotions of his audience."

"Then there followed a general discussion of preachers and preaching. It seemed that every man present knew just what a preacher ought to say and how he should say it; whether his hair should be long or short; whether he should wear a suit, a frock coat, a black or white, a sermon twenty-four or twenty-five minutes long. One might think they had all taken special instructions in sacred eloquence and were skilled in the art of preparation and delivery of sermons."

"I have noticed," remarked one man whom I took to be a merchant, "that preachers as a rule are impractical; they need to rub against the world and learn human nature. They deal with things that are too airy for the ordinary man. Theories are good, but difficult to put into practice. Preachers should walk on the ground occasionally; it would do them a lot of good."

"I feel the same way," responded a man with an aldermanic appearance. "I feel the same way. Preachers mix up in things they know nothing about, and because the people in the church believe everything they say they cause a deal of trouble. They are great on reform. They would reform the hose in the fire department if they had a chance. They give us more trouble at the city hall than any other class of citizens. Of course they get on to some things we try to keep quiet about. It does no good to be everlasting talking about them. It is a bad advertisement for the town."

"I do not object to their reforms," continued a third whose remarks he took to be a lawyer's shrewdness. "The thing that gets me is why preachers should disturb such fellows as you. I doubt if any of you have been inside a church for a year and how the deuce you know so much about preachers when you never hear a sermon beats me. I seldom go myself, but it is not for the reasons you give. I have lost interest because of the conservatism of the preacher. The half of preaching is an emphasis on doctrines preached a hundred years ago. If the preacher is a Methodist he tries to resurrect John Wesley; if he is a Presbyterian he tries to bring John Calvin to life. We have no place to rest for either of these gentlemen. They served their age, but any attempt to resurrect them is contrary to the spirit of the times. John Wesley and John Calvin both held that the world was flat and stationary and their theology was as far astray as their astronomy."

"Why don't you set up a theological school and begin the task of correcting the errors of our ancestors?" asked one of the aldermen.
"I have no notion of that," continued the lawyer, "but I have some ideas I would like to give to all preachers. I believe they would correct the impression that the world is going to the how-ows because men of intelligence do not go to church. Once we went to church to have the pulpit do our thinking for us; we do not do that today. We are thinking for ourselves. We go to church to day to worship and for inspiration to life's duty, and when we fail to get that we stay at home. I do not believe it is possible for any man to inspire his audience to large things today who holds to the theology of the sixteenth century. It is time the belated preacher was waking up to the fact that he is behind the procession."

"Come, come!" said the merchant, "tell us what you believe."

"I am always willing to do that," replied the arm of the law.
"First," as the preachers say, "I believe in an all-wise, all-powerful God who created the heavens and the earth; but I do not believe that He is responsible for the death of little children, for sickness and disease and for a lot of other things usually attributed to him."

"Do you believe in the story of the death and resurrection of Christ?"
"Certainly I do. They are among the best authenticated facts of history, and the man who rejects them is not able to weigh evidence. But I do not believe that Christ's death was for the purpose of placating an angry God. When you make the death of Christ more than an expression of love you do more than Jesus did when he said 'God so loved the world He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him might not perish but have everlasting life.'"

"Do you believe in the incarnation?"
"Sure I do," replied the man now on the witness stand. "How can I explain that noble life lived under such unfavorable conditions and not believe in the divine nature? But I would not explain that phenomenon so as to make Him a monstrosity with two wills and two personalities; and when a man does so he does violence to the simple words of the Bible. I think preachers have got to get away from theology as it is usually understood. The theology as well as the philosophy of the sixteenth century at their reforms. The cause of being out of relation to the canons of modern thought. There is a demand today for a reinterpretation of the New Testament, and for a reinterpretation of primitive Christianity. People have got to find out the mind of Christ and interpret it in terms of modern thought. Then men will not be kept from church. Religion is a normal thing."

Just here an old farmer who had been smoking quietly, knocked the ashes from his pipe and remarked: "Waal I have noticed that you have to sow the seed before you get a crop, and if the seed is good and the soil poor you get a mighty slim return. I have heard a good many preachers in my time and it appears to me they know about as much of what is going on as the next one. Most people don't want anything new about them. They want to do just like they've always done. Now down in our town where I come from, a new thought is a mighty sneaky thing; people talk about it as though it was a ghost. They don't want any new-fangled notions down our way. The old folks want to do just like they seed things done about fifty years ago and they are tryin' mighty hard to make the young 'uns come up in their tracks. You come down to our town and try to give us any of your hifalutin notions, Mr. Lawyer, and you will find a hornet's nest openin' up about where your brain pan is. Now talk about reforms. The preacher is about the only man with us who takes enough interest in the town to keep the aldermen from putting it in their pockets. And you can't sicker 'em off neither. They'd rather give up their job than give up their principles. You never heard of a politician falling over hisself for the good of the town did you? Never heard of one making a martyr of himself for the good of the cause except at the rate of about fifteen hundred or two thousand dollars a year did you? An' as far as being practical is concerned, I have heard that about 90 per cent of the business men fail some time in life. You have heard a good deal about such and such a thing being business-like and practical. Well, when you hear that is a good thing to remember that only about ten per cent of all these practical business-like fellows, make a hit. They are pretty much like my dog when he is tryin' to bite his tail—they have a hard time to make ends meet."

Just here the discussion was interrupted by the sound of the fife, tambourine and drum in the streets of the Salvation Army on the street just below. J. W. LAUGHLIN.

Side Lights On The Circus Business

By
D. W. WATT

(Copyrighted.)

Last Tuesday morning, while standing in front of the Myers House the bus backed up at the main entrance of the hotel and four or five gentlemen alighted. One of them came over and grasped me by the hand and he was awfully glad to see me, but he could see in a minute that I did not recognize him and he said:

"I don't know you," I said, "No," and apologized for my had eyesight. "Well," he said, "This is a good joke on me. Is it possible that I have come all the way from New York to visit a man who does not know me?"

He said, "When I was with the show I was on the payroll as John D. Hill, but everybody around the show called me Jack." But as I had not seen Jack Hill for twenty-five years and as at that time he was quite a youngster, for a moment I could not place him.

Jack Hill's home was in Fort Scott, Kansas, and it was there that he spent his early life and got his education in the high school. Jack was a newspaper man in Fort Scott. In the winter of '86 he made application to Adam Forepaugh for a position with the show as newspaper agent and came on to Philadelphia to take his position with the show early in April.

Jack's work was that of newspaper contracting agent and was on the third car which was ten days ahead of the show, so that his work kept him ahead of the show practically all the time and little was seen of Jack Hill back with the show.

In eighteen and eighty-seven which was his second year with the show, we went west and along about the middle of the season we were billed home. He wrote to Mr. Forepaugh saying that when the show exhibited in Fort Scott he would like to come back and spend the day with his people. Mr. Forepaugh readily consented to his coming and looking up his friends in Fort Scott, for it might be that we never would be that way again.

Jack was in Fort Scott to meet us early in the morning when we arrived and as Mr. Forepaugh had given him unlimited use of complimentary tickets for his friends, Jack set out and entertained them royally. He picked out some seats up pretty well toward the top for his father, mother, brother and sisters and then selected three seats for his best girl, three of his friends and himself. These were only three tiers from the bottom seats so that they were close to the ring side.

Shortly after the performance had commenced a young man rushed out of the dressing room whom Jack had never seen before and stepped up to him and asked him if his name was Hill. When Jack assured him it was he said, "Your wife would like to see you in the dressing room. His best girl and her friends grew red in the faces as well as Jack himself, but he told them it was a joke that was put up on him and there was nothing in it. Jack Hill had been gone from Fort Scott for two years and the girls seemed to be a little suspicious.

Shortly after he had explained matters as he supposed in a satisfactory manner a young lady by the name of Millie Quinlan, who was a balancing trapeze performer with the show, rushed over to the reserved seats with a scowl on her face said, "You Jack Hill, come back in the dressing room and take care of the baby. Don't you know that my act comes on in a few minutes," and turned and away she went.

Then Jack was up against it in good shape. The more he tried to explain matters the worse it got and Jack, in speaking of it last Tuesday, said, "Well, if I had stayed with the show until this time and it had showed in Fort Scott, Kansas, every year I would not have been there, for the trip did make there cost me my best girl and the friendship of the three girls that she had with her."

Jack Hill stayed with the show for three years and then secured a fine position on the Washington Post and later went to the Washington Republic, where he remained some time. He was then with the Ringling show for three years and then went to New York City where he represented different theatrical attractions, remaining there until 1902. He then went with the press bureau as a representative of the Standard Oil Company, which position he still holds.

Mr. Hill and his wife are now visiting friends in Monroe, Wisconsin, and later will occupy a cottage near Minneapolis at one of the resort lakes in Minnesota. He has a leave of absence of four months and it goes without saying that John D. Hill is one man that started in show business who certainly has made good.

And last Tuesday was certainly an interesting and busy day for us both for we turned back many a page in history and visiting over the good old times of more than twenty-five years ago. When Jack bade me goodbye to take the evening train for Monroe he assured me if it was possible for him to get one more day off he would come back and we would finish up. And Jack Hill is one of the kind of friends that you are always glad to meet and to introduce to others as your friend.

In nineteen and seventy-nine when the Burr Robbins show was going by wagon, we were showing in a small town in southern Illinois and the drive to the next town was twenty-five miles. On a trip of this kind the breakfast and the cook tent on the show grounds was at one o'clock and at the hotel for the performers and other people was at three. I had a good pair of road horses that could always make ten miles an hour, or more, if I had to hure last one out of town in the morning and the first one into the next.

In this particular town, in going out I drove by the show ground and as it had just commenced to show in daylight I looked over in the vacant lot where we had showed the day before and thought I could see something on the lot. I pulled in on the ground and here I found Richard Brooks, better known here as "Sailor Dick," who was the boss animal man, and had in charge the two elephants. Dick rode on horse-back and drove the elephants ahead, but he had overslept and was two hours behind the baggage and cage wagons.

I woke him up and told him that he must get to the next town as fast as possible, as Mr. Robbins would be along in less than an hour and a half, and well Dick knew that this meant a severe calling down, if it did not cost him his position. And there was where the elephants had to do the work. Most people would naturally think that an elephant could not travel twelve miles an hour, but "Sailor Dick" was but a few minutes over two hours making those twenty-five miles and his favorite salute to the two elephants was to "mile up."

I drove the twenty-five miles in a little over two hours and I had not been on the grounds ten minutes when "Sailor Dick" came in with his two elephants and his favorite salute never found out that he was two hours late in leaving the lot.

And these were the days when many hardships had to be encountered by the wagon shows of the good old days.

Economy

"If first cost were the only cost I'd buy a car, too," does not mean much to owners of Dreadnought Molines. This car answers all economy demands. Of course, there are unavoidable expenses—gasoline, oil and tire costs—but the biggest cost of all, the incessant repair bills, has been eliminated by the sturdy construction and correct designing of this superb car.

This car has more than 100% excess strength, yet it is one of the lightest cars of its class. It is made to withstand double any probable strain.

Its perfect balance, easy springs, and extra-size wheels and tires not only increase the comfort, but reduce the wear on tires to a minimum.

Its long stroke motor (4½x6) develops enormous power at slow speeds, reducing vibration and thereby saving the entire car besides reducing the gasoline consumption to an astounding extent.

Added to this sturdy car's economy is its ideal comfort. Turkish upholstery which cannot be surpassed for ease together with its springs, long, specially sensitive, yet almost unbreakable, make it ride as smoothly as a boat.

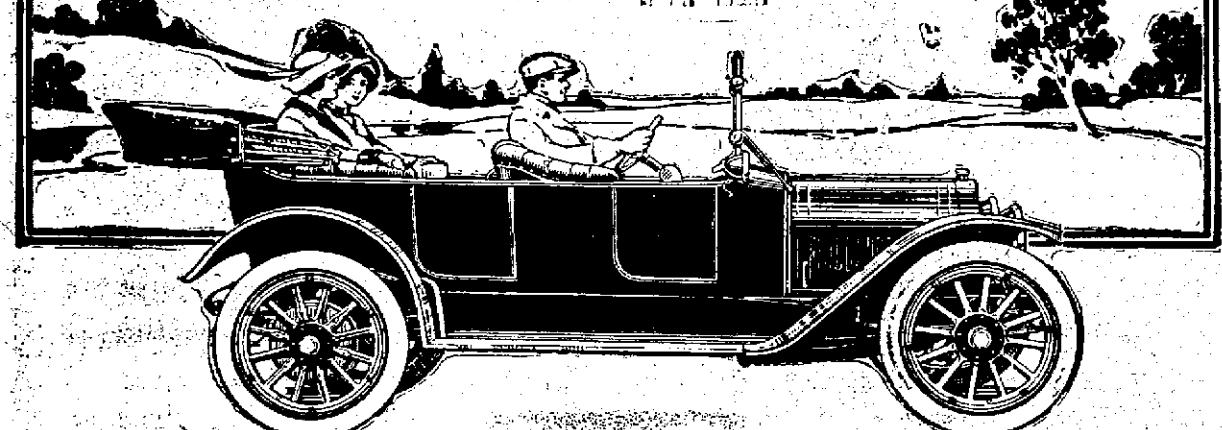

You need not fear for its durability. A car that can win such events as the Chicago Reliability run every time it has entered, which means 1910, 1911, 1912, will stand the driving to which you will submit it.

Read these specifications with care, then come in and let us demonstrate the car.
